In 2019, creativity in photobook publishing continued to flourish with outstanding works from an international group of independent and established publishers. This list, chosen by TIME’s photography staff, celebrates any type of book driven by photographs, from lavish volumes like music icon Rihanna’s visual autobiography to more experimental artists’ efforts like photographer Sohrab Hura’s The Coast.

Some photo books expose the unfamiliar in familiar circumstances or stories. Elino Carucci’s Midlife illuminates a universal period in a woman’s life that is rarely exposed. Lisette Poole’s first book La paloma y la ley provides an intimate and personal account of migration, a topic too often oversimplified and hyper-dramatized.

Other books provide new context and information through a thorough anthological dive into a topic or theme, such as Hannah Darabi’s Enghelab Street, A revolution through books, Iran 1979-1983, and The New Black Vanguard: Photography between Art and Fashion by Antwaun Sargent, or a book that surprised many of our editors, On Death: Various Artists.

Andres Gonzalez’s uniquely bound American Origami is the book we’ve chosen to highlight, in addition to the 30 others presented here. The 42-year-old photographer from Mountain View, Calif. explores the depth of trauma that follows school shootings in America. Released in September, the book features more than 700 photos, though not a single one depicts the common scenes of shock and grief so routinely captured in the immediate aftermath of such tragedies. Instead, Gonzalez hones in on mostly inanimate objects—mountains of handwritten cards, drawings, paper cranes and other tiny mementos left behind and archived after some of the deadliest school massacres in the nation’s history.

American Origami by Andres Gonzalez - Published by Fw:Books/Light Work
While sifting through the forgotten items from the 2007 Virginia Tech shooting that killed 32 people, Gonzalez found a pair of green chemistry goggles, which had on them faded notes a lab partner had written to a slain classmate. “Discovering the massive amount of artifacts hidden in these archives made me feel grief in a new way,” Gonzalez tells TIME.

In Newtown, Conn., for example, where 20 first-graders and six educators were murdered at Sandy Hook Elementary School in 2012, well-wishers from across the world sent more than 65,000 stuffed animals and a half-million condolence letters. “No one should have to go through this,” reads one of the letters, “but you are not alone.” The gifts filled makeshift memorials and homes of survivors and victims’ families, eventually so inundating the town much of it had to be incinerated.

“People are just trying to connect to these tragedies that they don’t understand,” says Gonzalez, who also documented the Parkland and Columbine attacks. “I wanted to engage with that grief, to embrace it and preserve it.”

The rest of the book’s pages are filled with first-hand accounts by survivors and witnesses as well as images of empty streets after camera crews have moved on. “Someday there may truly be a reckoning,” Gonzalez says, “and I want this collection to hold that memory the same way our scars preserve our personal histories.”

One virtue of the photobook, compared to the other ways we experience photography, is that it allows us to dig deep into a topic or theme and reveals the unseen details of familiar stories. There is the space and time to sift through all of the elements of a project while creating a tactile experience that stays with us. It’s a lot different than swiping up on a phone. The photobooks on this list bring together the familiar and unfamiliar in a gripping way that feels bold and experiential. We hope you enjoy this year’s selection.

Midlife by Elinore Carucci - Published by The Monacelli Press

!Midlife by Elinore Carucci

Flowers For Franco by Toni Amengual - Self-Published

!Flowers For Franco by Toni Amengual
Federal Triangle by Mike Osborne - Published by Gnomic Book

Cats: Photographs 1942–2018 by Walter Chandoha - Published by Taschen

Mother by Paul Graham - Published by MACK Books
The New Black Vanguard: Photography between Art and Fashion by Antwaun Sargent - Published by Aperture

Woodstock: 3 Days of Peace & Music by Michael Lang - Published by R|A|P

Things People Wear In Kenya by Philippine Chaumont and Agathe Zaerpour - Published by Kodoji Press
Carnival by Mark Steinmetz - Published by Stanley/Barker

The Other Side by Nan Goldin - Published by Steidl

On Death: Various Artists - Published by Kris Graves Projects
The Hampton Album by Frances Benjamin Johnston - Published by MoMA

Omaha Sketchbook by Gregory Halpern - Published by MACK Books

Hardened by Jeff Mermelstein - Published by Mörel Books
Stories by Santu Mofokeng - Published by Steidl

Combing for Ice and Jade by Kurt Tong - Published by Jiazazhi

Hannah Darabi – Enghelab Street, A revolution through Books, Iran 1979-1983 - Published by Spector and LE BAL
La paloma y la ley by Lisette Poole - Published by Red Hook Editions

Abendlie by Birthe Piontek - Published by Gnomic Book

Provincetown by Joel Meyerowitz - Published by Aperture
Séance by Shannon Taggart  -  Published by Fulgur

The Coast: Twelve Parallel Short Stories by Sohrab Hura  -  Published by Ugly Dog

Family by Masahisa Fukase  -  Published by MACK Books
April Dawn Alison - Published by MACK Books

Rihanna by Rihanna - Published by Phaidon

The Pillar by Stephen Gill - Published by Nobody Books
Photographs by Jack Davison - Published by Loose Joints

In Color by Manuel Álvarez Bravo - Published by RM

Issues: A History of Photography in Fashion Magazines by Vince Aletti - Published by Phaidon

Correction, Dec. 27. The original version of this story misstated the title of April Dawn Alison. It is April Dawn Alison, not April Dawn Allison. The original version of this story also misstated the author of Coming for Ice and Jade. It is Kurt Tong, not Kurt Long.